JOHN H LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

TUESDAY NOV 8, 1870

THE BLOCKADE RAISED

The driving of the last spike in the shifted rails on this end of the Maine Central road signalized the raising of the blockade which has so long obstructed our western communication and the advent of a new era in the business life of Bangor, now, for the first time in its history, brought into uninterrupted connection with the great railway system of the country We think the importance of this event can hardly be overestimated by our people, sweeping away, as it does the impediments which have hampered our transportation, and by imposing unnecessary expense and vexatious delays, checked the development of that busy freight traffic which affords the chief stimulus to domestic industries

Hitherto, we have been cut off from the western portion of that State, except on the single line through Lewiston and Danville to Portland, and at the latter point our freight has been brought to a stand by the necessity of transhipment, to the narrow gauge cars of the Boston roads, the same break of gauge at Kendall s Mills imposing a practical blockade upon freighting intercourse with the section traversed by the Portland & Kennebec Railroad The inconveniences of travel, though of minor importance as compared with the obstructions to trade, have still been the cause of just complaint, especially when the storms of winter rendered the connections uncertain, and intercourse with the State Capital involved the certainty of a shivering scramble from one train to the other and the risk of a dreary detention, if the cars were behind their time Our facilities for leaving and returning to the city have also been greatly restricted, but one train arriving, quite late in the evening and but one going out, quite early in the morning, rendering it impossible for a person to transact any business after arriving here without remaining a whole day and two nights, while our merchants are subjected to the same inconvenient delay in attending to any slight matter of business in Boston

These difficulties have of course been largely owing to the distance, which even railroads have not been able to annihilate and we do not expect to find them immediately and wholly removed by the recent change of gauge, but we are already promised an additional train to and from Augusta, which will prove of great convenience and we presume these will be so arranged that passengers leaving here in the afternoon may take the night express for Boston, saving a day for the transaction of business Other conveniences are promised with the completion of the new organization and among them we hope it may be found practicable to secure an earlier delivery of our evening mails

The advantages to freight transportation will be of the utmost importance The uncertainty and delay in sending produce and all goods of a perishable nature from this section of our State to Boston, have discouraged the building up of a large through trade and seriously retarded the development of our resources. Under the old system, trains of freight cars arrived in Portland each day, of which only a portion could be transhipped to the next train leaving in a number over to the next day, when a fresh arrival would add to the accumulation of delayed freight, until with the cars sent forward on the Boston roads and those laying over in Portland the freight rolling stock of the Maine Central would be comparatively exhausted and the greatest difficulty experienced in furnishing trains for the regular freight traffic of the line

With the broad gauge line these difficulties were unavoidable, as the handling of freight requires time and the western trains could not be delayed to await the transhipment, so that in addition to the expense of reloading, the detention and risk of damage were constant penalties for the lack of uniformity in gauge Now, freight can be shipped on this portion of the line, in cars which will run directly through to Boston, avoiding stoppage, breakage by handling, damage by decay, and extra expense, arriving at the Boston depot in twenty four hours after leaving this city and returning in the same time

We have previously expressed our opinion of the fallacy of running railroads in Maine, on a gauge preventing connection with the lines outside of our State, and we hail the contraction of the Maine Central to the narrow gauge as bringing us into practical union with the business centres of the country When the change is fully accomplished, as we hope it will be, we shall have a choice of through routes to the west, and with the completion of the E & N A. Railroad next Fall, forming a direct line to Halifax, and the finishing of the Bangor & Piscataquis line, which is required to open up the valuable slate quarries and develop the country north of us Bangor will enjoy facilities of trade which can but effect a rapid increase in its wealth and prosperity

Arkansas and Louisiana voted yesterday and election will occur to-day in Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin, in all of which members of Congress are to be chosen, while State officers will be elected in Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Massachusetts, Missouri, Michigan, Nevada, New York, Tennessee and Louisiana. Of the present Congressional delegations from these States, 134 in all, 82 are Republicans and 52 Democrats — The Democrats will probably make some gains, owing to dissensions in the Republican ranks, but their advantages will be likely to fall far short of their hopes The principal interest will be centred in the New York election, where efforts will be made to secure a fair vote We hope the Republicans may carry the Empire State and are confident that some of the rascally practices which prevail there will be changed, but Tammany is as powerful with the ignorant masses of the city as it is corrupt, and the want of harmony among the city representatives of Republicanism has injured the prospects of the canvass, which depend entirely upon reducing the city vote to something near its honest proportions We think the braves will find discretion the better part of valor and that the presence of U S troops in the vicinity will prevent any serious rioting

THE ILLNESS OF SENATOR MORRILL The Lewiston Journal of yesterday says that serious fears are entertained of the results of Senator Morrill's illness, which is gastric fever—the same fearful disease which carried off Prince Albert, Collector Jewett, and many other distinguished men. For some days his stomach has been so sensitive as to refuse to retain a particle of nourishment. On Sunday, however, he was somewhat easier, though the gravest apprehensions are still entertained.—Speaker Blaine, who was absent visiting friends in Pennsylvania, was called home Saturday, by a telegram informing him of the illness of his intimate friend and fellow townsman From all parts of the State and country, we have unusual exhibitions of solicitude and sympathy, in view of Senator M's dangerous illness. We trust, however, that the crisis has been passed, and that the life of our distinguished Senator will be spared to his family, his State and his country.

The New York Standard makes the following correction of an error in its editorials recently copied by us:—

A Washington correspondent says "The date of General Cox's letter to the Ohio Committee should have been August 20, instead of October, 10, as it was printed. The politicians are using the error against him."

The Standard was led into the same error from reading the Evening Post. So much of our criticism as related to the writing of the letter after the resignation falls It also enables us to announce that the fifty dollars contributed by Gen Cox's rolls went into the canvass, and did its share towards securing the great Republican victory of October

PREPARING TO ENFORCE THE ELECTION LAWS A New York dispatch states that the Supervisors lately appointed in that city have made a careful examination of the registry lists, and have found about 16,000 suspected names on the rolls which will be closely watched on election day, and any attempt at fraudulent voting promptly checked. Marshal Sharpe has issued to his 4000 deputies, full instructions, prepared by Attorney General Akerman, defining their duties and the offenses for which they may make arrests on election day without a writ, and urging upon them fidelity and discretion in the discharge of their important duties They are to secure a free exercise of suffrage to every person entitled to vote to afford protection to Supervisors and Inspectors in the discharge of their duties, and especially to guard against any attempt at miscounting the votes The Supervisors and deputies are themselves liable to arrest for any neglect or violation of official duty Gen Sharpe says he confidently believes no conflict will take place between the national and any other authority and the chief deputies and their subordinates are directed to act with great prudence and moderation and to subject themselves to all inconveniences which may not be infractions of the law

A QUESTION UNDER THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT The Knoxville Chronicle states that quo warranto proceedings have been instituted in the United States Circuit Court against Hon A O P Nicholson, Chief Justice, and Thomas A R Nelson and J L T Sneed Judges of the Supreme Court of Tennessee, and Hon Joseph B Heiskell, Attorney General and Reporter The charge is that these parties are holding office contrary to section third of the Fourteenth amendment. It is claimed that after holding offices of honor and trust under the Constitution of the United States, and taken oaths to support the same, they afterwards engaged in rebellion The question will be heard in January, and in the mean time the State court will stand adjourned

Messrs Stoughton, Curtis, Bartlett, Donalme and Bell, New York lawers publish an opinion on the new Congressional law that Supervisors and Deputy Marshals appointed under that law have authority only over the elections of Representatives to Congress and have not, under pretext of supervising the votes of Representatives to Congress any authority whatever to interfere with, or embarrass or in any manner to obstruct, the full exercise, by any citizen, of his right to vote for State officers They also declare the arrest of persons by Deputy Marshals without the authority of sworn writs will be a violation of the Constitution of the United States subjecting the officers to the same punishment as if the offence was perpetrated by any other person.

The London Economist calculates how much property the defenders of Paris expose to danger in waiting a Prussian bombardment as follows Value of buildings one hundred and fifty four millions three hundred and fifty thousand pounds sterling; value of furniture and other contents of dwellings, seventy seven million one hundred and seventy five thousand pounds sterling value of stock in trade seventy seven million one hundred and seventy five thousand pounds,—making a total of three hundred and eleven million, seven hundred thousand pounds sterling, or about fifteen hundred and fifty eight million, five hundred thousand dollars

In one of his recent speeches, Wendell Phillips paid his respects to the newspapers of Boston as follows —

I never knew the cause which was fathered by the journals of Boston that was not bankrupt in seven years They have a chronic disposition to go wrong They listen to the aspiration of the pavement and forget the great common sense of the State And if you want to prophecy what will be the policies of Massachusetts ten years hence, get the average purpose of the Boston journals for three months and go to the other side of the political quarter

The Boston traveller resents this aspersion and strikes back sharply, thus —

It is now almost ten years since the Boston press with entire unanimity, in harmony with the feeling on State street, declared that the rebellion must be subdued and the Union preserved Mr Phillips is credited with opposing the newspapers than just as he does now For aught we know, he claimed, then as now, to be the embodiment of "the common sense of the State" The cause of the Union is not yet bankrupt But somebody has given evidence of a chronic disposition "to go wrong" Was it Mr Phillips, or was it the "journals of Boston"?

THE WRECKED STEAMER VARUNA The five survivors from the steamship Varnum from New York for Galveston, which foundered off the Florida coast on the night of Oct 20th, arrived at Savannah, Ga, Friday They were W Kirtland, second mate, Wm Wallace, quartermaster, Thomas Gleason James Burns and George Watson, seamen.—After the Varuna went down they were sixty hours in an open boat without food or water until cast ashore by the breakers on the Florida coast. They give a thrilling account of the foundering of the steamer, and the escaping of the other boats, as well as their own adventures and sufferings before reaching the land From the account it would seem that the passengers all went down with the ill fated vessel, though their number is not stated

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL

Ten thousand dollars has been deposited in a New York Bank on a bet that Ledwith will get 40,000 votes to-day

United States Marshal Sharpe said yesterday that there were then just 0,000 troops in New York, and 1,000 more were expected

The N Y Tribune says that a number of the Tammany wire-pullers, finding Mayor Hall too heavy a load, have privately arranged to throw him overboard and help elect Ledwith

In urging the Republicans to vote early today the Tribune also says "we hear that Col James Fisk, Jr has warned out his regiment to parade at 8 o'clock, a. m., and we cannot tell what deeds of desperate daring he may meditate"

The N. Y Herald's Washington correspondent says that Chief Justice Chase has determined to resign, and that Chief Justice D K Carter of the District of Columbia will succeed him, also that Senator Drake of Missouri will be appointed Chief Justice of the Court of Claims, vice Judge Casey

A TEMPEROUS PASSAGE - The steamship Columbia, just arrived at New York from Glasgow, 10th inst., with 102 passengers, reports having encountered terrific hurricanes soon after leaving Glasgow, and for eleven successive days mountainous seas, hail squalls and blinding rain storms prevailed, smashing the boats, carrying away sails, deluging the saloons and staterooms and disabling the officers and crew. Capt. Smal had his right hand crushed and Dr Robertson had his collar bone broken The oldest sailors say that it was the most terrible passage they ever experienced

Sound Logic for the Sick.

The invalid has often good reasons to complain, severe from his friends As a general thing each of them will have a different medicine to propose and if he follows all their prescriptions in turn their well meant advice may be the death of him. The only sensible course in any case of sickness is to resort promptly to a specific which has stood the test of a long and widely extended public experience, and obtained on solid and sufficient grounds the reputation of a Standard Remedy This rank among the restoratives of our day belongs of right, and beyond all dispute to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters Let those who are taking it answer for themselves as to its tonic properties Can any dyspeptic who has ever used it question its superiority as a stomachic over every other medicine? Can any person be billous habitually who has even taken it for liver complaint doubt its efficiency? It is believed among thousands of thousands who are now using or have heretofore used it an alterative and corrective not one can be found who would exchange it for any other preparation in the known world For intermittent fevers nervous debility constipation sick stomach, and all complaints arising from indigestion or impoverishment of the blood it is the only article which can be conscientiously guaranteed and no one who is thoroughly acquainted with its virtues will allow interested dealers in worthless slops on which they make a larger profit to furnish them in the place of the great vegetable restorative

DENIAL OF THE PROPOSED SALE OF CUBA.

Madrid, Nov. 7. The Correspondencia newspaper denies the statement lately made in New York papers relative to the sale of Cuba. The Correspondencia is the organ of Sagasta Moret, Colonial Minister, and may therefore be regarded as official. The journal adds that the Spanish people would not permit the sale of Cuba to the United States or any other nation on any terms.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE ELECTION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.

Gov. Hoffman this afternoon issued a General Order to the 1st division of State militia, announcing that the Federal and State officials had agreed on measures for conducting the election to-morrow, which it is believed would render all military interference wholly unnecessary; yet as a measure of precaution, ordering, should the services of a division be required, to aid the civil authorities in preserving the peace, that troops immediately assemble, ready for service, at their respective armories. Upon the usual signal from the Fire Department ranks will be formed at once and the men within their armories, ready for instant service.

It is also reported unofficially this evening, that the State and Federal authorities have effected an arrangement by which no U. S. troops are to be stationed in the city or at the polling places to-morrow, but will only be held in readiness at their usual posts in the harbor fortifications and posts in this vicinity, for any emergency which may arise.

The Express states that General Grant is in the city incog., having arrived from Long Branch this morning, for the purpose of commanding in person the troops to be employed to-morrow. None of the other papers have any similar information.

Col. Fiske Jr. publishes a card this afternoon declaring that the assertion, made by Horace Greeley this morning that he had ordered out the Ninth Regiment for duty to-morrow is "a willful, base and wicked lie, and he knew it. If I had announced that the regiment was to escort Hindoo lunatic asylum there they might have been some sense in the story."

Three more registration repeaters (one colored) were committed this afternoon in default of $10,000 bail each.

Fifteen hundred deputies and U. S. Marshals have been appointed in Brooklyn, and full instructions issued to them this afternoon. All the East River ferries are to be closely watched to prevent the emigration of New York repeaters.

NEW YORK ITEMS.

New York, Nov. 7.

Judge Bedford to-day fined George Francis Train $100 for evading jury duty.

The suit of Bailey against Ex-President O'Mahoney of the Fenian Brotherhood to recover possession of funds of the order was to-day dismissed by default.

Rev. Morrill Richardson, lately of Worcester, Mass., will be installed as pastor of the New England Congregational Church in this city on the 16th inst. Rev. W. H. H. Murray of Boston will preach the sermon, and among the prominent clergymen who will take part in the exercises are Rev. Drs. Dexter of Boston, Todd of Pittsfield, Quint of New Bedford, Burton of Hartford, Perkins of Washington, &c.

LOUISIANA ELECTION

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.

The election passed off quietly. United States Marshal Packard and Deputies were on duty all day. Perfect order prevailed throughout the city. Nothing definitely known in regard to the election in the state. The count progresses slowly.

THE LATE FRANK B. BROWN.—In our columns a few days since was announced the death of Frank B. Brown, of Chicago, son of Walter Brown, Esq., of this city. Mr. Brown several years since removed to Chicago, where in connection with his brother, Edwin L. Brown, he had until his death been an active and successful merchant. Below will be found the resolutions of respect and condolence adopted by the Chicago Board of Trade on the event of his death:

"Resolved, That in the death of Mr. F. B. Brown the commercial and industrial interests of our city have suffered great loss."

Resolved, that the business character of Mr. Brown was marked by those qualities of strict accuracy, untiring industry and rigid integrity which insures success; united with them was a sagacity and energy in the initiation and prosecution of new industries which have strengthened and broadened the life of our city; and these characteristics were crowded with an unfailing courtesy and considerate kindliness, which to his associates gave double value to his sterling qualities.

Resolved, That while placing on record our respect for the character of the deceased, we tender to his bereaved widow and family the assurance of our profound sympathy in their great affliction.

NEW STORE.—One of the finest fronts in the city is that of the new block, Nos. 41 and 42, West Market Square, just finished, and occupied by Messrs. S. H. Dale & Co. The first story of the front consists of massive iron columns with graceful corinthian capitals, between which are large plate glass windows and two handsomely finished white oak double-leaved doors. From the top of the iron columns to the roof, the front is constructed of a handsome pink granite quarried in Jonesboro' with trimmings of white Hallowell granite. The width of the front is 40 feet, and the block runs back to the wharves, 91 feet. There are no partitions in the interior, which is unbroken on every floor, save by the iron columns which support the floors, and a stairway in the center. The basement is thoroughly built of stone and brick, with walls eight feet high, and a floor of brick laid in cement. The walls of the first story are 12 feet high, those of the second, 11 feet, the third, 10 feet, and the fourth, under the roof, 10 feet at the front and rear, and 15 in the center. The lower floorings and all the timbers are of the best Southern yellow pine. In the rear of the first story, a spacious counting room is railed off, and desks for the members of the firm and clerks are set near the front. The basement and second floor are each provided with a water closet and lavatory, to which water is furnished by a large tank in the attic. From the basement to the attic, in two immense elevators or cabins, [illegible] the attic. The roof is [illegible] by a skylight. The [illegible] is [illegible] on the outside by an iron [illegible] and bridge of the same material, from the new [illegible] Market. The driveway [illegible] the basement and sides of the owner, and builders. The plans were prepared by Geo. M. Harding, Architect, and the iron work was done by Emery & Co.; the masonry by [illegible] Smith, the carpenter work by Chas. B. Brown; the plumbing and heating by Angel Leighton, and the painting by John Brown.

—The Lewiston Journal says that Coroner Lancfield held an inquest Saturday afternoon in the body of Oliver Dodge, killed by the railroad train at the new Empire Shoe Shop. The evidence showed that the deceased came to his death by having his neck broken, and that concert and saloon caused no any carelessness of the employees of the road. The train was running from Danville Junction to the grade crossing at Mechanic Falls. The engine was ahead of the train, but backed. Next came the boiler car, and after that the passenger. The engine was coupled to the boiler car, the boiler car being placed upside down, and the passenger car thrown on top of the boiler, and would have been in the boiler car instead of the engine. The engineer, John A. Sinclair, was both bruised about the face and on his arm, and had one of his fingers broken.

—On Tuesday, Mr. Chas. Dunn of Andover, was thrown from a load of beards and had his left wrist broken by the left wheel passing over it.

—On Thursday, the 26th ult., the wife, child and mother of Mr. Richard Morton of Andover, were thrown from an express wagon, the horse upset on which they were driving on Haverhill street. The mother was thrown by upset internally. Mrs. Morton's collar bone and the child slightly bruised.

—An Infirmary and Sacred Concert, was held at Lewiston on Sunday last. Collections, over $100 were taken.

—The Dr. [illegible] a man from the country entered a Portland [illegible] and purchased [illegible] to be taken home. Comment [illegible].

—Messrs. Sawyer & Sons are building at Portland an iron gallows for a person on Cape Cod. It is 20 feet in diameter at the base, 40 feet tall and laid off an inch to every inch in diameter.

—On Monday, the 26th ult., the dress of Mrs. Harriet wife of John A. Fisher, of Charlestown, caught fire, and she was severely burned that she died when lingering in great agony for thirty-six hours.

—Saturday night, Oct. 28th, a dwelling occupied by Young Cole, in Pembroke, was burned with nearly all its contents. The barns were unknown by the mole. Loss about two hundred dollars. No insurance.

—The Machias Republican says the recent heavy rains have raised the water finely, and all the mills are in operation turning out the lumber with little energy.

—A correspondent of the Press writes that large preparations are going on in the city for Augusta, parties buying up whole lots, and retailing at large advance to parties who are going to build.

WAR NOTES.

Rochefort has resigned his position on the Committee of Defence, in consequence of a misunderstanding with the government on the question of Communal elections.—The Paris government no longer meets at the Hotel de Ville, the Council being held at the private residence of one of the Ministers.—Twelve of the principal officers of the National Guard have been arrested, and a number of commanders of battalions have been dismissed for participating in the late disorders.—The appointment of General Clement Thomas as Commander-in-Chief of the French National Guard has been confirmed.—A special correspondent at Versailles telegraphs that M. Thiers on Saturday had an interview with Favre and Trochu at Billancourt. M. Thiers reported an agreement that had been concluded with Bismarck, which was approved by Favre and Trochu, who expressed a belief in their ability to obtain the support of the population of Paris in carrying out the agreement.—A Paris correspondent states that there is bread and wine enough to last until March. The stock of salted meat is immense and preserved vegetable and poultry are still plentiful in the markets. There are still many cases of small-pox.—A dispatch from Berlin says that the King expected to return there on the 21st, and great preparations are being made to welcome him as the Emperor of Germany.—A dispatch from Dole 4th inst. says that Garibaldi has been taken prisoner with 20 Italian officers.—The New York World's special telegraphs from Versailles on Sunday, that the Provisional Government has finally rejected the protocol agreed upon by Thiers and Bismarck, although previously they had signified their approval. Thiers received orders from Paris to notify Bismarck that his conditions could not be accepted, and to return to the capital immediately. The cause of the rupture is believed to be the persistence of Bismarck in insisting on guarantees for the cession of territory. The war goes on. The Prussian Ambassador at London says the struggle will continue all winter.—Thiers, after his interview with Bismarck, returned to the Hotel de Reservoir, where he met the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, who greeted him cordially. "Do you not recognize me?" said the Duke. "Oh yes, under what terrible circumstances I see your Highness again," was the reply. Upon taking leave of the Prussian officers at the outposts, on his return to Paris, M. Thiers pointed to the public buildings in the capital and with a voice broken by sobs exclaimed, "Never before have I felt how much I love that unfortunate city,—what desolation to me to see it thus."—The Tours government had not on Sunday evening given the public information of the result of the negotiations for an armistice. The general impression is that the Ministers are not anxious for an armistice and a great number of addresses against it have been received from all parts of France.—By the capitulation of Bazaine 53 eagles, 54 field guns, ammunition for more than 36 batteries, 800 siege guns, 60 mitrailleuses, 300,000 rifles and sabres, 2000 military carriages, powder factories, etc, fell into the hands of the Prussians.

NILSSON AND MISS CARY IN BOSTON.—The Boston Music Hall was crowded with an enthusiastic audience on Friday night to welcome Mlle. Nilsson. The Boston Post gives the following description of the appearance of the fair Swede and that of Miss Annie Cary who shared the honors of the occasion:

The Swedish artist is a truly beautiful woman; a blonde, fair as a lily, elegant and dignified in every movement and of charming presence. Her pure, open features are familiar to us from her portraits, which, however, do not do justice to the intellectual expression of her features. She was exquisitely dressed in a rich white silk, made with the corset train. The front of the underskirt was trimmed with a deep flounce with a pulling at the head. The train was similarly ornamented. The overskirt was very long and was much looped at each of the front and side breadths. The back reached nearly to the top of the trimmings on the underskirt. The pulling of tulle covered completely around the overskirt, edged with deep point lace. Down each side of the skirt extended long wreaths of convolvulus flowers and leaves. The body was cut low, and folds of tulle were placed bertha form around the neck, and a bunch of convolvulus on the left shoulder. An elegant necklace was festooned around her throat, from which dropped pendants of diamonds and pearls. Her hair was carelessly dressed in loose bands and curls, and a spray of the same flowers that ornamented her dress drooped over the left shoulder, and was fastened to the hair by an elegant diamond cluster.—Diamonds glistened from her ears, and her arms were clasped by heavy gold bracelets. As she stood before the audience, she seemed a beautiful model of simple purity, in exquisite harmony with the liquid melody of her voice. She looked as she sang, and in each she was delightful.

Miss Annie Cary could not have wished a more inspiring and hearty reception than that accorded her by an audience which greeted her as a returning favorite, to whom the most cheering words and the fairest flowers were due. This lady has greatly improved by her absence, and not only in the culture of her remarkably fine voice, but in her personal appearance. As she came on the stage last evening amid a storm of applause, she wore a simple and stylish dress, but one extremely tasteful and becoming. It was of rich white silk, made with a train and trimmed with four flounces edged with tiny ruffles. The body was low, and a wreath of smilax passed around the neck, fastened in front with a bunch of scarlet geraniums. The same bright flowers bloomed amid her brown curls, and fell in graceful sprays over her shoulders. Around her neck she wore a single black velvet with a locket attached, which was her only ornament. The simplicity of her toilet added another charm to the many which she possesses.

Of Nilsson's singing the Post says:

She united the brilliancy of Carlotta Patti and Lagrange, with the mellowness and musical beauty of Parepa, and every note was lithful so fresh and pure that it fell upon the ear like a spray of diamonds.

And it compliments Miss Cary as follows:

Miss Cary appeared beneath the overshadowing disadvantage of the peerless star of the evening, but she nevertheless won great honors. Her voice, in two years has gained depth, roundness and melodiousness, and to day stands among the very best mezzo sopranos in the country.

The President has directed Marshal Gregory to take a new census of Philadelphia in consequence of the question raised by the city authorities as to the completeness of the enumeration taken by Marshal Gregory.

A Chicago dispatch states that the small pox is raging at Victoria on the Saskatchewan with terrible violence. It has cut off a hundred people at Fort Pitoine. Many Missionaries had fallen victims and the Blackfeet Indians suffered at the rate of 15 per day. The same reports come from other parts of the territory.

In the first race of the Amherst, College Regatta on Saturday, the Freshman crew beat the Seniors half a minute, making the three miles in 21.59. The second race between the Junior crew and the crew from the Amherst Agricultural College, was won by the latter in 10.59.

A counterfeit bond for ten thousand dollars was passed on the California Bank in San Francisco by a man named Van Tassel, who escaped with the proceeds. He is supposed to have gone to South America and the steamer Senator has been sent from San Diego to overhaul the Panama steamer and bring him back.

Geo. E. Badger of East Boston, while recovering from typhoid fever, became suddenly insane yesterday morning and shot himself, dying instantly.

The Boston lead works which were burned Saturday night were insured for $170,000 nearly all in Boston offices. The loss exceeds a quarter of a million.

John Campbell's woolen mill at Manayunk, Pa., was burned Sunday night. Loss $[illegible], insured $45,000.

The Board of U. S. officers convened at St. Louis for the revision of the Tactics has dissolved by orders just issued, and the officers comprising it will join their respective stations.

The directors of the National Railroad Co. on Saturday, unanimously voted to unite proposals up to the 25th inst. for building several connecting Roads in the middle, or in sections, between Philadelphia and New York.

The State of Missouri has brought a suit against the National bank, of that name for $361,600 interest alleged to be due 1869 shares of stock of the old bank owned by the State, and for which certificates of ownership were not issued to the State at the time the bank was reorganized as a national bank.

Those Woolen buildings on Congress St., Portsmouth, N. H., occupied as stores and dwellings were burned on Sunday morning. Among the principal losers are Dr. J. H. Thpcher, Apothecary, Dr. Dearborn, city physician, E. D. Goodall, Daniel H. Burleigh, millinery, and J. E. Filler, fancy goods. Total loss about $25,000, mostly insured.

ANOTHER BOLD ROBBERY ON THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD.—The passenger train on the Central Pacific Railroad, which was robbed on Friday between Reno and Verdi, was boarded again on Saturday at Independence, 22 miles west of Truno, by four highwaymen. The robbers uncoupled the train behind the express car and ordered the engine to proceed, leaving the latter part of the train behind, which they sacked, taking several thousand dollars. On hearing of the robbery, the Deputy Sheriff of Tonno, with a posse of police, armed with Henry rifles, immediately started in pursuit of the robbers. The mail car was also plundered of bonds and greenbacks estimated at a quarter of a million of dollars. Wells, Fargo & Co, offer $15,000 reward for the apprehension of the robbers. A well organized pursuit has been instituted.

MORE REPRIEVES SENTENCED.—In the U. Court in New York, Monday, Judge Woodruff sentenced John McLaughlin to two years in the Albany Penitentiary for false registration, and Herman Schweder to six months in the Kings County jail for the same offence.

NEW MAGAZINES.

In the OVERLAND for Nov., having looked the first thing, as usual, but in vain, for one of Bret Harte's inimitable poems, we were only too glad to find a racy prose sketch from his pen, entitled "The Iliad of Sandy Bar," which with a fine description of "Wilhelmshohe," a history of the notorious "Princess Salm-Salm," a very good story about "Spilled Milk," and an article entitled "The Bed of the River," contribute to make this an unusually interesting number. John H. Carmany & Co. of San Francisco, publishers.

NEW MUSIC.

Among the new music just issued by G. D. Russell & Co., Boston, are a collection of Waltzes, Polkas, &c., entitled "BOUQUET OF DANCES;" a song, by Catlin, "ROUGH LITTLE BEAUTY EVERLEY;" "HERE'S HOW!" solo and chorus; "MEET ME THERE," the Garden Wedding song of Rev. and Mrs. John Allen; and "THEIR'S SWEETLIE MUSIC TO ME NIGHT," for sale by Patten and Wheeler.

SUBSISTENCE IN FRANCE.—How to find bread for 1871 is now a question of the highest import once in France. Various suggestions on this point are made by several French journals. It is proposed that the land should be occupied by crops of the first utility, such as beans, peas, potatoes, beans, etc., setting aside for the present all produce of secondary importance as food. In the South, tobacco and the mulberry occupy a great part of the soil. These should be given up for this year and the ground sown with wheat. Many of the proprietors of mulberries in the valley of the Rhone have been intending to remove the trees which have been unproductive for the last ten years. They might now cut them down and sow corn in the vacant spaces. It will not be possible to get enough plowing done, but repeated harrowing would supply the want of this, and the place of ordinary manure, which cannot be obtained, should be taken by enhanced compounds. Above all the system of allowing land to lie fallow must be suspended for this year. It is reckoned that a tenth of the cultivated land in France is fallow in consequence of this agricultural rule; the mention of such a proportion is alone sufficient to prove the necessity of the abrogation of the rule for the time being. It seems from these suggestions, especially the last, that the great calamity from which France is suffering may give an impulse to the science of agriculture, and be the means of introducing a better system of farming into that country.

BUSINESS ITEMS

Remember the wonderful and amusing experiments in Electro Biology at Norombega Hall to-night.

THE AGE OF RAILROADS AND THE TELEGRAPH gives rise to fast living, and increases the desire for making rapid fortunes—some wishing to outstrip, and others to be at least equal to, their neighbors. In order to keep up with this eager and unequal contest, the brain is taxed to its utmost power, while humanity is rendered an easy prey to disease. The Heart, Liver, Stomach, Lungs, or Nervous System becomes afflicted, and sickness, in the form of Heart Disease, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Consumption, Paralysis, or Mania, is the result. The use of FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES will enable the mind to sustain a greater strain unfettered by conflicting thoughts and unwearied by continued study. It imparts power of concentration. What before seemed difficult of solution becomes comparatively easy, and the body is physically stronger under its use.

OF IOWA,
CONNECTING ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.
Now Nearly Completed.
This road is built by a Company of strong capitalists, who have pushed their work forward at a rapid rate.
ONE MILLION
of the Company remain, which are offered at the very low rate of 90 and Accrued Interest.
Among their advantages are—
1st. The road is nearly finished, and the cars are expected to run across the State in 60 days.
2d. The road has been built only of the best material, the iron having been manufactured expressly for it, at a much higher cost than that usually paid.
3d. It runs through almost superb agricultural country.
4th. It has great advantages in carrying coal Northward bringing lumber South.
5th. The Mortgage is only $16,000 per mile, while in many other roads are loaded to double this amount.
6th. The road is principally owned by bankers and other capitalists, who have invested a large sum in its construction, and who have every reason to take care of its obligations.
7th. A first Mortgage for so small an amount, upon a road so near completion, and in such strong hands, may well be considered a perfectly safe security.
We believe there will be no more favorable time to sell Government, and buy really first-class Railroad Securities—such as these—than the present. With any further decline in Gold, Government must decline also.

THERE COMES A TIME

There comes a time when we grow old
And like a sunset down the sky,
Slope gradual and the night-wind cold,
Comes whispering and sad chilling;
And locks are gray,
As winter's day,
And eyes of saddest blue behold
The leaves all weary drift near,
And lips in faded coral say,
There comes a time when we grow full

There comes a time when joyous hearts,
While leaped as lions the laughing man,
Are dead to all save memory,
As I ponder in his dungeon chain,
And days of dread
Hath passed away,
The moon hath into darkness rolled,
And by the embers wan and gray
I hear a voice in whisper say, it is
There comes a time when we grow old

There comes a time when manhood's prime
Is shrouded in the mist and tears
And beauty, fading like a dream,
Hath passed away in silent tones,
And then, how dark
But O! the spark
That kindled youth to hope of gold,
Still burns with clear and steady ray
And fond affections, lingering say,
There comes a time when we grow old.

There comes a time when laughing spring
And golden summer cease to be,
And we pass on the autumn robe
To tread the last declivity;
But now the slope,
With rosy Hope,
Beyond the sunset we behold,
Another dawn with fairer light,
While watchers whisper through the night
There is a time when we grow old

SELLING STRAWBERRIES

BY AMY RANDOLPH

"I tell you it's all nonsense," said Uncle Peleg. "Charity—benevolence—pity!—it's all played out! Your big Fairs may be all very nice, but people don't come there because they pity the poor; they come because it is fashionable!"

Horatia Mere shook her pretty head.

"You see, child," said Uncle Peleg, taking snuff, "you're on the wrong platform ever to get a peep behind the curtain. You're an heiress, and tolerably good looking, and have a way that people like; and therefore the world puts its best foot forward, so far as you are concerned. If you were Mrs Sikes, the washerwoman, or Betsy, the orangewoman, you'd see quite a different aspect of things!"

"Nonsense, uncle," said Horatia, still unconvinced. "He a good, darling old Uncle Peleg, and let me have the Triumphe de Grande strawberries in your south garden border, for my refreshment table. Remember I'm to sell strawberries and cream, and I want my table to look the best in the room!"

"Who do you suppose will buy your strawberries, at the outlandish price you'll put upon them?" he demanded, sourly.

"Everybody," Horatia answered, saucily. "Come, Uncle Peleg, be generous and graceful, and say I shall have them!"

Uncle Peleg took snuff.

"On one condition you can have them."

Horatia clapped her rosy white hands.

"And that—"

"Just wait until you hear," said the old man drily. "You can't have my fifty quarts of Triumphe de Grande strawberries, each one as big as a pigeon's egg, until you have first sold a dozen quarts from door to door."

Horatia opened her brown, wondering eyes like twin wells of hazel light.

"I, Uncle Peleg?"

"You, niece Horatia! And I am to specify the houses where you are to go?"

"It will be fun," cried Horatia, with a gay laugh, "I'd just as soon do it as not."

"Perhaps it will be fun, perhaps it won't," said Uncle Peleg. "At all events, I want you to get one glimpse, at least, of life through a strawberry-woman's eyes."

"And am I to be disguised, Uncle Peleg?"

"To be sure! you are. Miss Horatia Mere would have no difficulty in disposing of her wares in a friendless strawberry girl is different."

"All the more delightful—a regular tableau vivant!" cried Horatia, merrily. "Well, Uncle, where am I to go?"

"I'll write down a list of names for you, that shall be called out of your dearest friends—Mrs Montague, Mrs Dysart, Miss Ferrars and the like!"

"They will all buy!" cried Horatia.

"We'll see" Uncle Peleg said. "Are you willing to buy the Triumphe de Grande at such a price as this, Horatia?"

"At any price," the girl answered gleefully.

"You don't know how disagreeable you may find it."

"It will be a perfect adventure!" said Horatia, recklessly.

"But mind, you're to keep it a secret"

"As the grave," his mischievous niece answered, with mock solemnity.

Miss Horatia Mere would scarcely have been recognized by her nearest friends, when she was dressed for the curious part she was to play "for one day only" as she declared. A calico dress; thick boots in which her tiny feet felt unwonitedly clumsy, a much-worn water-proof cloak, borrowed from Mary Ann, the cook, and a worsted hood enveloped in a faded black veil, and a basket hanging over her arm—these were the details of her costume.

Strawberries!" she cried, raising her sweet voice to 'C, above." "Oh, Uncle Peleg, it will be such a joke"

And she tripped away delighted at the prospect of playing at the realities of life

Uncle Peleg looked after her rather doubtfully, as he resorted mechanically to his unfailing panacea for all human ills or perplexities the snuff box

"I'm almost sorry I sent her on such an unpalatable errand," he said to himself, "but it's just as well she should learn to see the world as it really is. Her life has been all couleur de rose, and no wonder. The strawberries will be a dear bargain after all!"

While these eccentric reflections were passing through the old man's brain, Horatia Mere had steadily reached the first house on her list, inhabited by Mrs Montague, a lady who had always professed the sweetest and most saint-like character, whose voice was soft and low, and who spoke in six syllabled words of Websterian elegance

Mrs Montague herself was in the hall as Horatia rang the door bell

"If you please, ma'am," said Bridget, "it's a girl sellin' strawberries—will we buy a quart?"

"Strawberries indeed! and at the upper door!" shrilly cried Mrs Montague in a voice that for an instant almost compelled Horatia to doubt the lady's identity. "Don't you know better, girl, than to bring your trumpery wares to the front door? What do you s'pose basement bells were made for? Clear out this minute! What are you standing there for? Don't you hear what I say?"

And she took hold of Horatia's arm and assisted her progress with a vigorous push.

Mrs. Dysart came next—an elegant widow with an ivory pure complexion; curls like the tendrils of a grape-vine, whose obstinate twigs she was always lamenting. This time our heroine knew better than to go to the front steps, and made her way meekly to the area bell.

"Strawberries, is it?" said the little girl who came to the door "I'll ask the missis"

Mrs Dysart herself presently came to the door, and Horatia started to see the marvellous dissimilarity between Mrs. Dysart of society and Mrs. Dysart at home Her skin was allow, wrinkled and blotched; here and there, from the too frequent use of powerful cosmetics, her hair was screwed up into little papillotes secured by pins, making a perfect chevaux de frise of her head; her beautiful figure was lathy and straight like a pump shaped in calico!

"Strawberries! of course not at this season of the year," said Mrs. Dysart, snappishly. "I'm not made of money!"

And she slammed the door in Horatia's face.

"Miss Ferrars will buy them at all events," said Horatia to herself, "Lucille Ferrars was always noble-hearted and generous"

"How much are they?" said the fair Lucille, coming to the head of the stairs, in a déshabille of greasy cashmere and a soiled white apron.

"Eighteen cents a basket."

"Pshaw!" said Lucille, superciliously. "As if I was going to pay such a price as that! I'll give you ten!"

"They are unusually fine," said Horatia, timidly.

"I shan't give a cent over eleven!"

Horatia turned away.

"I wonder you fruit girls have the face to ask such a price!" said Miss Lucille Ferrars, fingering her purse strings. "Twelve, then—and that's more than they are worth!"

"I cannot sell them under the price I have named," persisted Horatia, shrinking from the sharp glittering eyes.

"Go about your business then" said Lucille. "I'll see the whole tribe of you starve, before I'll be imposed upon so!"

Horatia felt herself disenchanted. Could it be possible that this shrewish miser was her soft-voiced friend, Lucille Ferrars?

"Perhaps Uncle Peleg's views of human nature, may not be so very much amiss after all," she said, with a half sigh, after she had made some half dozen or more pilgrimages, and more than half of her berries remained unsold.

Mrs. Parker's house was the last on her list. Horatia had felt it remaining until all the other places had been visited, she herself could hardly have told why—perhaps because Justus Parker had been her partner in the "German" the night before. She liked Justus Parker—yet she sometimes distrusted his gentle, slow and smooth manner.

"I'm afraid it is all 'put on'," she said to herself. "But Uncle Peleg was determined I should go there, and I will not shrink, now the ordeal is so nearly over."

The servant requested her to go up and see the young lady herself—she's in her own room mostly."

Horatia had heard of Laura Parker's lingering spine disease, although she had never seen her. And her heart beat slightly as she ascended the softly carpeted flight of stairs, carrying her basket of berries.

Justus was sitting on a low chair beside his sister's sofa, at the further end of the room; he rose and came forward as the stranger entered.

"This basket is too heavy for you to carry," he said, taking it from her arm, and moving forward a seat, with a sort of unconscious chivalry.

"It is not so heavy as it seems," said she, somewhat bitterly, "and if it were, I am nothing but a strawberry woman."

"But I suppose a strawberry woman has feelings and sensations like other people," said Justus Parker, smiling. "Sit down a moment, while my sister looks at your fruit."

"You must be very warm, said Laura Parker, gently." "Lay back your veil.—Justus, please ring for a glass of water."—Horatia accepted the water, but refused to unlight her veil. It was altogether too good a medium for her to observe the quiet tenderness with which Justus Parker treated his invalid sister—the open Bible on the table, the fresh flowers by the sofa, all mute tokens of thoughtful love and care.

Miss Parker bought half a dozen baskets of the berries without one word of exception to the price.

"They are the finest I have seen this year!" she said. "You must come again when you have more"

Horatia Mere's cheeks were burning when she made her escape at last, both basket and heart considerably lightened.

"Well, uncle!" she cried gleefully, when she at length reached home, "I have earned the Triomphe de Grande!"

"Have you been to all the places?"

"Yes all"

And she told him her adventures with playful humor.

"Not a bad day's work," said Uncle Peleg, laughingly

Miss Horatia Mere had the handsomest refreshment table and the best sales of any young lady at the fair, and Justus Parker is her favorite customer

The result of the fair, not an uncommon one, if all reports are true, was one wedding, (not more Horatia Mere was married to Mr Parker; but not until after the honey moon did he know how his aristocratic little bride had sold strawberries!

"Was it wrong of me?" she asked wistfully "Under the circumstances, no," Mr Parker answered gravely

ROMANTIC MARRIAGE—A BOY WEDS HIS GUARDIAN—The New-Orleans Picayune of the 18th inst., has the following

"A few days since a well-dressed and handsome youth, of some eighteen years of age, appeared before one of our city Magistrates and asked if he could engage his services to perform a marital ceremony. The reply was in the affirmative, and the young man left, but shortly afterward returned, accompanied by a sombre looking female, middle aged and dressed in black.

"Is this lady your mother?" inquired the Magistrate,

"Oh, no, Sir; this is the lady I desire to marry" replied the youth, as the lady drew aside her veil, disclosing a countenance wrinkled and sere, but on which for the moment gleamed a sort of icy smile

"Indeed"

"Oh, yes, Sir"

"But are you of age?"

"Not yet but this lady is my guardian,"

"And she gives her consent?"

"Yes, Sir."

The Magistrate was in a quandary. He didn't know exactly what to do He hated to sacrifice the youth, and join the bright-laced May to the gloomy, icy December. "Isn't this rather a strange union?" he asked.

"Not at all," replied the expectant bride. "I have a large amount of property, which I desire to lead this young man. As I have relatives who might dispute the will were I to give it him as a legacy, I prefer to marry him"

"And you are content to marry this woman for her money?" asked the justice

"Well, I shouldn't marry her for any thing else" frankly replied the boy lover. "She ain't pretty"

And without more ado the ceremony was concluded."

A GOOD WAY TO WASH FINE LACES—As a general rule, when once a fine collar is "done up" at home, it is done up indeed Its beauty is gone forever Better to send it at once to a professional clear-starcher, and pay half its value for its renovation, than to spoil it one's self, for nothing. But really one need not be a French widow, with six small children to maintain, before one can properly wash and iron a bit of lace There is a way of doing it with very little trouble:

Take a common wine-bottle, and cover it as tightly and smoothly as you can with the cut-off leg of a soft strong stocking securing it firmly above and below This is a permanent institution, which may do service for future laces innumerable. Then winding your soiled collar or strip of lace smoothly around the covered bottle, you proceed, with a very fine needle and thread, to sew carefully all around its outer edge, catching each individual loop to the stocking-net This done, you have only to move the bottle up and down in a pailful of hot soap-suds occasionally rubbing the soiled portions lightly with a soft sponge When the lace is clean, rinse it by pouring clear hot water upon the bottle, then apply a very, very weak solution of gum arabic, and stand the bottle in the sunshine When it is perfectly dry, you may rip off the laces. They will probably not need pressing, but if they do, you need only leave them for a few hours between the lower-fly leaves of a heavy book. No hot iron should touch them—though, in case of haste, they may be laid on flannel between a few thicknesses of fine soft muslin, and so ironed

Let me add a hint. Sew your lace to the covered bottle at odd moments—when you are waiting for the kettle to boil, or when you are chatting with a visitor—and have it ready to be washed when an opportunity occurs.—Hurrth and Home

CAUSES OF SUDDEN DEATH.—Very few of the sudden deaths which are said to arise from "disease of the heart" do really arise from that cause. To ascertain the real origin of sudden deaths, experiments have been tried in Europe, and reported to a scientific congress had at Strasbourg. Sixty-six cases of sudden death were made the subject of a thorough post mortem examination, in these cases only two were found who had died from disease of the heart. Nine out of sixty-six had died from apoplexy, while there were forty-six cases of congestion of the lungs—that is, the lungs were so full of blood they could not work, there not being room enough for a sufficient quantity of air to enter to support life. The causes that produce congestion of the lungs are cold feet, tight clothing, costive bowels, sitting chill chilled, after having been warmed with labor or a rapid walk, going too suddenly from a close heated room into the cold air, especially after speaking, and sudden depressing news operating on the blood The causes of sudden death being known, an avoidance of them may serve to lengthen many valuable lives, which would otherwise be lost under the verdict of "heart complaint" That disease is supposed to be inevitable and incurable; hence many may not take the pains they would to avoid sudden death, if they knew it lay in their power.

DAILY BATHING.—In order to keep well and grow hardy, nothing excels the daily cold bath. A washbowl of pure soft water, a cake of soap, two towels and a washcloth are sufficient apparatus when you have no bath room. On rising in the morning, wash only a part at a time and rub vigorously with a towel. An American who has kept up this habit every day for sixteen years, has been confined to bed but once during the time; then it was by a contagious disease. Others of the same family have practiced it with similar results, and though they came of an enfeebled stock, are remarkably healthful. When daily bathing is first practiced, begin cautiously; make only a partial ablution the first day, and gradually increase its extent; do not omit the friction. Your bath will soon become more essential to you than your breakfast. It prevents easy taking cold, keeps the feet warm and circulation even, and promotes a clear skin and good looks. The privacy of a bath room can be secured anywhere by enclosing a small space around the washstand with a light screen made like a clothes-frame and covered with paper or chintz. It can be set away when not in use.

RECIPE FOR PRESERVING EGGS.—The eggs are beaten to a uniform consistency, and spread out in thin cakes on batter plates. This dries them into a paste, which is to be packed in close cans and sealed. When required for use, the paste can be dissolved in water, and beaten up to a foam like fresh eggs. It is said that fresh eggs can be preserved for years in this way, and retain their flavor. We don't know where this recipe originated, but we give it for what it is worth.

WOMAN.

Females, owing to the peculiar and important relations which they sustain, their peculiar organization, and the offices they perform, are subject to many sufferings. Freedom from these contributes in a small degree to their happiness and welfare, for none can be happy who are ill Not only so, but some of these various female complaints can long be suffered to run on without involving the general health of the individual, and ere long producing permanent sickness and premature decline Nor is it pleasant to consult a physician for the relief of these delicate affections, and only upon the most urgent necessity will a true woman so far sacrifice her greatest charm as to do this The sex will then thank us for placing in their hands simple specifics which will be found efficacious in relieving and curing almost every one of those troublesome complaints peculiar to the sex

Helmbold's Extract Buchu.

Hundreds suffer in silence, and hundreds of others apply vainly to druggists and doctors who either merely tantalize them with the hope of a cure or apply remedies which make them worse I would not wish to assert anything that would be injurious to the afflicted, but I am obliged to say that although it may be produced from excessive exhaustion of the powers of life, by laborious employment, unwholesome air and food, profuse menstruation, the use of tea and coffee, and frequent child-birth, it is far oftener caused by direct irritation, applied to the mucous membrane of the vagina itself

When reviewing the causes of these distressing complaints, it is most painful to contemplate the attendant evils consequent upon them It is but simple justice to the subject to enumerate a few of the many additional causes which so largely affect the life, health, and happiness of woman in all classes of society, and which, consequently, affect more or less directly, the welfare of the entire human family The main that exists for precocious education and marriage, causes the years that nature designed for corporeal development to be wasted and perverted in the restraints of dress, the confinement of school, and especially in the unhealthy excitement of the ball room. Thus, with the body half-clothed, and the mind unduly excited by pleasure, perverting the midnight revel the hours designed by nature for sleep and rest, the work of destruction is half accomplished

In consequence of this early strain upon her system, unnecessary effort is required by the delicate votary to retain her situation in school at a later day thus aggravating the evil. When one excitement is over, another in prospective keeps the mind morbidly sensitive to impression, while the now constant restraint of fashionable dress, absolutely forbidding the exercise indispensable to the attainment and retention of organic health and strength, the exposure to night air the sudden change of temperature, the complete prostration produced by excessive dancing, must, of necessity, produce their legitimate effect. At last, an early marriage ends the climax of misery, and the unfortunate one, hitherto so utterly regardless of the plain dictates and commonsenseness of her delicate nature, becomes an unwilling subject of medical treatment This is but a truthful picture of the experience of thousands of our young women.

Long before the ability to exercise the functions of the generative organs, they require an education of their peculiar nervous system, composed of what is called the tissue, which is, in common with the female breasts and lips, evidently under the control of mental emotions and associations at an early period of life, and, as we shall subsequently see, those emotions when excessive, lead, long before puberty, to habits which sap the very life of their victims ere nature has self-completed their development

For Female Weakness and Debility, Nullities or Leucorrhoea, Too Profuse Menstruation, Evolution, Too Long Continued Periods, for Prolapsus and Bearing Down, or Prolapsus Uteri, we offer the most perfect specific known
